For the Year Ending 31st March 1971

of Ontario*

MINISTER'S FOREWORD

On March 1, 1971, I was officially sworn in as Minister of Correctional Services and my predecessor, the Honourable Allan Grossman, assumed the Portfolio of Minister of Trade and Development. Thus, eleven of the twelve months of progress outlined in this Report occurred under the direction of Mr. Grossman.

I spent the first month after my appointment visiting institutions, meeting with staff, and reviewing existing and proposed new programs. I was most impressed with the calibre of staff and the quality of the rehabilitative programs – both of which are a tribute to my predecessor. In view of Mr. Grossman's outstanding leadership in the corrections field during the more than seven years he served as Minister of this Department it was appropriate that, on May 30, 1971, the University of Ottawa conferred upon him an Honorary Doctorate in Criminology. A facsimile of this document is reproduced on the opposite page.

In today's complex and rapidly changing society crime and delinquency are problems of major proportions. I look forward to meeting the challenges facing this Department in its continuing efforts to increase the effectiveness of rehabilitative programs for those in our care.

CITATION

Relatively new in the academic array, Criminology draws upon a broad spectrum of disciplines to bear upon its subject matter. Within a short period of time, while some of the other disciplines pursued their fixed and isolated course, it has become a classic example of the new multi-disciplinary methods of problem-solving and of professional formation. The new administrators in the correctional system are equipped with specialized knowledge in several fields that make it relevant to the values and needs of modern society. ALLAN GROSSMAN, a man of insight, character and determination when charged, eight years ago, with responsibility for the correctional services of this province, saw that efficient administration was not enough, that change and redirection in their thrust was essential, and that revision of the laws and regulations governing them was imperative. He acted.

Ensuring himself of the best professional advice and counsel available, he proceeded to seek amendments to the law and changes in the system. The Ontario Training Schools Act 1965 and the Ontario Correctional Services Act 1968 stand as monuments to his dedication to the principle that society is best served not merely by punishment of the offender but by his rehabilitation. The Correctional Services Act alone replaced no fewer than 18 previous statutes, ending the isolation of the prisoner from the community and introducing positive forces in his rehabilitation. Corollary to these was Mr. Grossman's introduction of the Temporary Absence and the Incentive Allowance programs, and his decision to limit the size of training schools to 125 children, and of reformatories to 200 adults, in any new facilities to be built in Ontario.

ALLAN GROSSMAN, as businessman, community leader, politician and legislator, has retained the instinct of the practical humanitarian in seeking to enhance the stake of society in the constructive treatment of the social offender. It has been the fortune of Ontario, recognized in other jurisdictions too, that he has married with such success programs to reconcile the offender's debt to society and society's debt to the offender, in the interest of both.

It is for these reasons, Honourable Madame the Chancellor, that in the name of the Senate, I present to you for the degree of Doctor of Criminology, honoris causa, the Honourable ALLAN GROSSMAN, Member of Her Majesty's Privy Council for the Province of Ontario.

RAYMOND H. SHEVENELL, O.M.I.

Statement of Purpose

Statement

The main purposes of the Department of Correctional Services are (1) to carry out the legal duties imposed upon the Department by the courts for the protection of society, and (2) to attempt to modify the attitudes of those in its care and to provide them with the kind of training and treatment that will afford them better opportunities for successful personal and social adjustment in the community. All of our programs must be designed with prime emphasis on these purposes and carried out in such a way that they are in consonance with each other.

Principles and Methods

Although methods will vary according to individual needs, as a general principle, open communication between residents and staff is of prime importance and inherent in a correctional process that seeks to modify those attitudes towards society which have led to antisocial behaviour. Attitudes cannot be changed effectively in a psychologically deprived atmosphere or through association only with others whose attitudes are similar ; therefore, all staff should initiate opportunities for healthy association with those in their charge. It is equally necessary to break down as much as possible the subculture found to some degree in all institutions. The more influence the staff can have upon this subculture the greater the possibility of reducing tension, of increasing reformatory potential, and of minimizing the conflict which is always likely to exist, in any institutional setting, between the aims and purposes of the population and those of the administration. Two ways in which this influence can be exerted are :

- (1) Increased communication between staff and residents.
- (2) The use of selected correctional officers as leaders in guided group discussion.

It therefore follows that staff who associate with residents, at whatever level, should be reasonably mature and adjusted socially. Their moral values should be in the main those generally acceptable to society at large and, clearly, it is essential that they themselves should have respect for the law. In addition, they should adopt an understanding attitude towards antisocial and morally repugnant behaviour and develop an ability to accept the individual as a person without necessarily approving his behaviour.

Training for all levels of staff is stressed in order to develop and maintain their attitudes in line with progressive correctional thinking and the principles emphasized in this Statement of Purpose.

The personal adjustment of the individual and the acquiring of social skills are of prime importance, and are encouraged by recent legislative changes which allow temporary absences for humanitarian or rehabilitative reasons, permitting both the acceptance of family responsibilities and the utilization of community work and training resources. Academic, vocational, recreational, religious, and treatment and training facilities of all types, both in and out of institutions, will be used to the fullest in providing as many opportunities as possible for the acquisition of skills potentially useful in post-release adjustment.

Successful reintegration into the community is the largest single factor in determining the effectiveness of any rehabilitative program. Through our aftercare service, those leaving our care and reentering the community should be given appropriate assistance in this period of adjustment.

The extent of the barriers to effective communication between staff and residents is directly proportional to the size of the institution, and in planning new institutions we will aim for units with a maximum capacity of 200 for adults, and schools with a maximum capacity of 125. We recognize that it is difficult if not impossible to carry out our purposes without appropriate facilities and a well-trained staff with positive attitudes.

We lay great stress on research, and our operations are guided as much as possible by research findings; inherent in all of our operations is the principle that what serves no useful purpose should be discarded.

*The Honourable C. J. S. Apps
Minister of Correctional Services*

Sir:

I have the honour and privilege of submitting my report of the Department's operation and progress for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1971.

Of major significance during the year was your appointment as Minister of this Department on March 1st, succeeding the Honourable Allan Grossman who was appointed Minister of Trade and Development.

During his term of office of more than seven years as Minister of Correctional Services, the Honourable Allan Grossman was recognized for his progressive leadership and accomplishments in this challenging field.

Following your many years of interest in work involving the youth of the province, your appointment was most welcome to correctional workers, and the expeditious implementation of Project D.A.R.E. has been received with enthusiasm by staff and students alike. This intensive training program, consisting of a series of self-testing challenges to which young people are exposed, is already proving to be most promising for those who have not responded to more conventional school programs.

In the following pages are recorded the program developments of the last fiscal year. Our efforts have been directed towards meeting our responsibility in attempting to modify the attitudes of those in our care and to provide them with supportive treatment and training. The improvements in our programs and facilities were designed to assist staff in achieving more effectively the goals outlined in our Statement of Purpose.

On May 15, 1971, the Quinte Regional Detention Centre was officially opened. This Centre, which replaces four local jails, each over 100 years old, is the first in the Department's plan for the replacement of local jails with modern regional centres. At the present time two more Centres are under construction and one is in the planning stage. Although almost all jails must be replaced, we have continued to make essential temporary repairs in an effort to meet minimum standards as far as practical.

As a result we have initiated an extensive repainting program: all visiting facilities have now been assessed and improved wherever practical; a variety of jail recreation programs have been introduced; counseling programs have been extended. The use of jails in the "live in - work out" aspect of the Temporary Absence Program has been most effective.

Throughout the year extensive use has been made of community resources. There is now a growing recognition of the need for greater community/inmate interaction. Towards this end the Department appointed a Coordinator of Community Programs, to extend the range of opportunity for offenders to participate in community life and to increase the involvement of the citizen in the rehabilitation process. Although we have made real progress towards this goal we are aware of the many more aspects of community life which must eventually play a part in the correctional process. One important step has been the appointment, as a pilot project, of a Citizens' Committee, to work in close cooperation with the staff of the Ottawa-Carleton Regional Detention Centre, which is now in the course of construction.

The Temporary Absence Program, which is one facet of the community interaction program, has been eminently successful in adult institutions and has already become an important aspect of the correctional program at most institutions. Its obvious acceptance by staff, inmates and the public is very gratifying.

During the year, as part of an over-all government plan to deal with the growing incidence of drug usage, the Department's treatment of drug addiction was expanded in two ways. At the Alex G. Brown Memorial Clinic in Mimico a short-term chemical abuse program was introduced which parallels the present treatment of alcoholism but is shorter and more intense than the normal program for drug addiction. Additionally, a drug addiction coordinator, working out of the Clinic, was appointed to provide assistance and guidance to the various institutions in expanding and/or developing counseling programs. To accommodate an expanding program of treatment in the field of chemical abuse and of sex offenses, a new Clinic complex is in the course of construction in the Brampton area. It is expected that the new buildings will be ready for occupancy during 1972.

Under construction also and scheduled for completion in 1972 is the Oakville Reception and Assessment Centre. This Centre will replace present reception facilities and provide assessment for all boys and girls prior to transfer to a training school, a group home, a special treatment centre, or other appropriate setting.

On August 19, 1971, Cecil Facer School, which is the first interdenominational, bilingual training school for boys, was opened in Sudbury to accommodate boys from the north of the province.

Although it does not fall strictly within the fiscal year reported, the impetus you have given to the provision of group homes for juveniles is of such importance as to merit special mention. Discussions you have led with those concerned, emphasizing the urgent need to provide youngsters with facilities very closely interwoven with the community, have established a sound basis for the operation, by voluntary agencies, of group homes for children in our care. Guidance and supervision of the group home program will, of course, be provided by departmental staff. This is unquestionably a major step forward in the provision of more appropriate facilities for those youngsters likely to respond in a setting of this type.

In our work we have been helped tremendously by many concerned people, individually and in groups. Our thanks are extended to all these people and also to the staff of the Department who this year, once more, have given a great deal of themselves in their efforts to help others.

Staff Recruitment and Training

PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION

Personnel Branch activities were increased through the opening of new institutions and the initiation of new programs. A number of new positions and organizations were developed and, as a result, a major increase in competitions was witnessed, together with an influx of new staff.

Close liaison was maintained with the Training Schools Branch in the recruitment of staff for Project D.A.R.E. and for the Cecil Facer School, and with the Jails Branch for transfer of staff to the new Quinte Regional Detention Centre.

With more and more personnel transactions taking place it became clear that a more flexible system of complement control had to be developed. This was achieved by making increased use of the Department of Civil Service computer facilities in effecting Personnel Records transactions.

Staff relations took on a more important role through the medium of local and departmental Employee Relations Committees, with many meetings being held with staff representatives.

PERSONNEL DEVELOPMENT AND TRAINING

To meet the changing requirements of the Department, the Staff Development program was revised and expanded during the year. The basic training for supervisors of juveniles was extended and is now similar to the program established for correctional officers during the previous year. New staff undergo a three-week orientation program, twenty-three weeks of assisted correspondence study, and a three-week residence course at the departmental Staff Training School at Guelph. The course was designed to provide the fundamental knowledge needed by all supervisors of juveniles. Those participating in the program receive assistance in their studies from experienced senior staff at their schools. A refresher course is being prepared to provide additional training for staff members who have not attended basic training during the previous five years. This allows staff to become aware of current correctional techniques and improve their effectiveness on the job.

With the cooperation of George Brown College of Applied Arts and Technology, trade instructors from various institutions participated in courses related to the effective teaching of adults. A three-day instructional technique seminar was held at Monteith for trade instructors from Rideau and Monteith Correctional Centres. Centennial College of Applied Arts and Technology provided instructors for a Child Care Worker program at two training schools.

Plans are proceeding for the new Staff Training College, to be constructed at Brampton, which will meet the ever-increasing need for in-service training.

An increasing number of staff enrolled in extension courses at universities, community colleges and other educational institutions. In addition, the Department continued to encourage participation in conferences, seminars, and workshops offered by professional and nonprofessional associations and organizations. Examples are provided opposite:

ADULT FEMALE INSTITUTIONS

The Vanier Centre for Women houses individuals, 16 years of age or over, sentenced to terms ranging from 30 days to two years in a modern, cottage-style facility located at Brampton. The program at the Centre, while constantly undergoing review and change, continues to utilize certain techniques identified with the Therapeutic Community model. It is within this framework that efforts to increase participation by residents in planning and decision-making occur. The focus is upon improving their general self-image as well as upon broadening social and work skills.

The academic and activities centre, the various employment locations, and each of the five different cottage programs are coordinated to identify and focus upon each individual woman's needs. Much of the program occurs within the framework of group discussion and confrontation, so that residents benefit both from the experience of helping others in a formal way and from receiving guidance, support and pressure from their peers. Correctional officers play a vital role in this process, as they maintain very close contact with their individual resident assignees in their cottage group.

Professional staff increasingly assume a consultative role in this group process, so that their time and skills can be shared fully by residents and staff. The Centre acts as a training centre for the University of Toronto's School of Social Work, and opportunities are being provided during this academic year for twelve Master's Degree students to be involved in the program at Vanier.

The Centre's maximum security accommodation is provided at the Classification Unit at Whitby Jail. This 10-bed unit accommodates women who require initial evaluation within a maximum security setting as well as those who have serious difficulty in functioning within the less secure setting of the Centre.

(It should be noted that the Whitby Unit was relocated to Toronto Jail on January 17, 1971. Although the program remains basically the same many residents will be closer to their homes and families. In addition, employment opportunities within the Metropolitan area are more accessible and varied for those who are able to be involved in a community employment situation.)

Residents of Ingleside, the minimum security cottage, rely increasingly upon community facilities for their employment and leisure-time activities. Employers in the Brampton/Bramalea areas have been most receptive to employment of residents and have provided a learning experience that can never be fully duplicated within an institutional setting. Churches and recreational resources have been equally responsive to residents as they attempt to form a more satisfactory community adjustment.

Much of this atmosphere of community receptivity has resulted through the work of citizens of Brampton, in particular the Centre's Inter-Church Volunteer Group and the local Elizabeth Fry Society. These volunteers have assisted residents in making use of the Department's Temporary Absence Program for job seeking, home visits, pre-release preparation such as contact with halfway houses, and recreational pursuits such as swimming and use of local library facilities. In addition, Elizabeth Fry Society volunteers have been valuable interpreters of the program at the Centre, conducting tours for many of the approximately 500 visitors per year.

A booklet describing the program and facilities is available at the Vanier Centre, Box 1150, Brampton, or the Department's Information Branch, 434 University Avenue, Toronto.

At the request of the Department of the Solicitor General, the Department has released Mr. G. Thompson, Administrator of Adult Female Institutions, to direct a study of programs provided for the female offender in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

ADULT MALE INSTITUTIONS

Early in 1971 the terms 'reformatory' and 'industrial farm' were replaced by 'correctional centre,' and, to avoid confusion with 'training schools' for juveniles, the term 'training centre,' for adult males, was changed to 'adult training centre.'

To cope with the highly diversified adult male population committed to its care, the Department operates a variety of institutions: five adult training centres, eight correctional centres, including one maximum security institution, six forestry camps, and two clinics.

INSTITUTIONS DIVISION

Expansion of the Temporary Absence Program (TAP) has continued throughout the year. In addition to employment, academic and vocational training, and visits home for a number of reasons, TAP has other worthwhile uses. For example, men from Guelph Correctional Centre participated in the Miles for Millions walk, helped out at a community party for children, worked at a retarded children's camp, and assisted in the preparation of sets for the Guelph Little Theatre.

Such involvement of offenders in community affairs during the period they must spend in an institution helps to alleviate some of the adjustment difficulties faced upon their return to society. The Department's aim is to see that every offender in its care who is suitable for temporary absence, receives the opportunity to participate in the program.

ADULT TRAINING CENTRES

Adult training centres provide a program of academic and vocational training for those between the ages of 16 and 24 who are well-motivated but who lack sufficient training to make full use of their abilities in the community.

The five adult training centres, Brampton, Burtch, Monteith, Rideau, and Thunder Bay, are spread geographically across the province. Each centre has accommodation for 60 students, with the exception of Brampton, which can house 144.

Brampton and Burtch training centres receive those students from the south-central region of the province who have been chosen by the classification committee at Guelph Correctional Centre as being suitably motivated for the training centre program. The programs at Burtch are designed specifically for students with learning difficulties.

All adult training centres operate a similar program: half a day is spent in a trades shop and half a day in academic classes. Grades nine and ten form the basis of the academic program, but Ontario Department of Education correspondence courses are available for students working above this level. Students at Brampton and Rideau attend classes in the community, under the Temporary Absence Program, for grades above ten. A science laboratory was added this year to the facilities at Rideau. Technical instruction is provided in trades currently in demand in the community.

In cooperation with Sheridan College, a number of staff at Brampton acquired basic skills in group discussion and counseling and assumed roles as group leaders. The project is aimed partially at developing a chemical abuse counseling program which would help students to reexamine the values which led to excessive drug use and, in turn, to difficulties within the social situation.

CORRECTIONAL CENTRES

Guelph Correctional Centre, the largest of the Department's institutions, receives all youths under eighteen years of age from southern and western Ontario, and all males serving their first sentences of imprisonment. A classification committee considers those under the age of 25 for possible transfer to Brampton or Burtch Adult Training Centres.

For those remaining at Guelph, trade training programs include bricklaying, carpentry, painting and decorating, sheetmetal work, motor mechanics, and upholstering. For those whose academic qualifications are not equivalent to the normal requirements of a particular trade, day and evening classes are held up to and including grade nine. Department of Education correspondence courses provide training in subjects not taught within the institution.

A number of offenders who are not suitable for the training programs are employed in the service industries, the agricultural program, or the forestry camp program.

Mimico Correctional Centre accommodates short-term recidivists eighteen years of age and over. This institution is also used to house offenders from other institutions who require medical treatment of a type offered only at large metropolitan hospitals. Because of the short sentences and the constant turnover in population this institution emphasizes work activities which require little initial training. Academic instruction is available for selected inmates, who work half a day in class and half a day at work activities. An increase in clinical staff at this institution has resulted in expanded treatment programs.

Millbrook Correctional Centre is the Department's only maximum security institution for adult males. It houses certain types of sexual deviates, drug addicts who are security risks, arsonists, escapees, as well as inmates who are severe behaviour problems and are therefore transferred to Millbrook from other institutions.

Although academic classes are provided for selected inmates, the program is primarily industrial. Automobile licenses for the province are made here, and there is a bookbinding and Braille printing shop, a laundry, a dry cleaning and pressing plant, and a general maintenance shop.

The teaching staff began a successful program in Creative Job Search Techniques in cooperation with Canada Manpower to help both the unemployed and the underemployed:

- (a) to gain awareness of how the labour market works,
- (b) to learn how to evaluate their vocational potential, and
- (c) to understand the process of selling skills to employers.

Three students from the Centre of Criminology at the University of Ottawa carried out their field placement at the Centre during the 1970-71 academic year, and during the summer months two students were employed as psychometrists.

Burwash Correctional Centre accommodates recidivists aged eighteen and over serving lengthy sentences. Trade training is available in machine shop practice, oil burner servicing, sheet-metal, and bricklaying. Academic courses are available for students who wish to upgrade their education level to meet both Department of Education standards and Canada Manpower requirements. Under the Temporary Absence Program a number of students attend electrical, drafting, welding, and carpentry courses at Cambrian Community College in conjunction with Canada Manpower.

The addiction treatment program was expanded this year to include drug abuse counseling, and a correctional classification counselor was added to staff.

A new recreation centre was opened in the summer of 1971 which provides facilities for an expanded recreation program. The remaining correctional centres, Thunder Bay, Monteith, Burtch, and Rideau, accommodate recidivists over eighteen years of age who are serving relatively short terms of up to one year. The programs vary, but each one provides trade training courses and industrial and maintenance work.

Phase 1 of a five-year building program to replace existing Burtch Centre buildings is nearing completion, and four new dormitories should be ready for occupancy early in 1972.

Several programs at Rideau, such as individual, family, and staff counseling, chemical abuse, and development of social skills, were expanded with the addition to staff of two correctional classification counselors as well as summer students from various universities. The correctional counselors also deal with inmates at the adult training centre.

Evening classes for academic upgrading are held at Thunder Bay Correctional Centre by teachers from the adult training centre.

FORESTRY CAMPS

All forestry camps are minimum security settings which provide work programs in such community projects as tree planting, pruning, logging, and road building. The projects are undertaken in association with the Department of Lands and Forests.

Six forestry camps are in operation, each one accommodating up to 40 men serving the latter portion of their sentence.

Each camp operates a recreation program which includes outdoor sports activities, weekly film shows, radio and TV and library books.

ALEX G. BROWN MEMORIAL CLINIC

Located in Metropolitan Toronto, this 104-bed clinic provides treatment for alcoholism, drug addiction, and sexual disorders. The short-term program for alcoholics was expanded to include other forms of chemical abuse and the 30-day treatment period has been extended to a 40- to 70-day period. The long-term program (3 to 6 months) for drug abusers now includes alcoholics. After an initial two-month period in the chemical abuse program patients may apply for industrial therapy. This program teaches basic skills and implants good work habits; those involved may, after two months, apply for work in the clinic or, under TAP, in the community. The present clinic is to be replaced by a modern, larger unit. This new clinic facility, which will accommodate 200 patients, is in the initial building stages on a site adjacent to the adult training centre in Brampton.

GUELPH NEUROPSYCHIATRIC CLINIC

This clinic provides psychiatric evaluation for any inmate referred there by an institution physician. After assessment the inmate may be accepted as an inpatient, may be given outpatient care while residing at the adjacent Guelph Correctional Centre, or may be committed for admission to an Ontario psychiatric facility. Where appropriate, he may be returned to the referring medical officer with recommendations for treatment.

JAILS BRANCH

During the year 105 correctional officers working in local jails attended the Staff Training School; they participated in courses for new officers, in refresher courses, in management courses for senior supervisory officers, and in addition, acquired specialized training where indicated, e.g. recreation and group leadership. Superintendents were brought together for seminars throughout the year, including a special one on drug abuse.

Continued progress has been made in the general improvement of facilities in the jails, which were taken over from the municipalities in 1968. Alterations and renovations were carried out in several jails in order to make better use of the space available and to provide better facilities for such areas as visiting and recreation. Modern equipment was installed where necessary, with particular emphasis in such areas as kitchens and laundries. Interiors are being repainted continuously and the use of bright, harmonious colours provides a more pleasing and relaxed atmosphere within the jail setting. Military-type uniforms have been replaced by green blazers and grey slacks.

Outdoor recreational programs are gradually being expanded to include more activities, such as volleyball and horseshoes. In addition, correctional staff are providing encouragement for the development of hobbies, enjoyment of reading and various other indoor activities.

Jails are visited regularly by Inspectors from the Department of Health and their recommendations have contributed to the general improvement of facilities.

JAIL REPLACEMENT PROGRAM

The Quinte Regional Detention Centre, the first such Centre in the Department's program to replace outdated local jails with modern regional facilities, was officially opened on May 15, 1971. Located at Napanee this Centre replaces four jails formerly operated by the Counties in this region.

Under construction and due to open in 1972 and 1973 respectively are the new Regional Detention Centres at Ottawa and Thorold, the latter to replace the jails in Welland and St. Catharines. Plans are also underway for the construction of a new Detention Centre to replace the existing jails in London and St. Thomas.

The design of these new Centres provides an opportunity to develop a more creative and flexible program than has previously been possible. In addition to the maximum security areas there are large minimum security units in the new centres and improved facilities for counseling, visiting and recreation. The Quinte Centre has served as the prototype for the other centres which are being built and has, since its opening, been the source of refinements in their design.

PILOT PROJECT – TORONTO JAIL

Considerable progress was made during the year toward the development of a Social Services Program at the Toronto Jail, the largest jail in the province. This is a pilot project designed to provide a type of supportive "crisis intervention" counseling for remand and short-term inmates.

In June, 1970, a Master of Correctional Administration graduate from the Centre of Criminology, Ottawa, joined the staff and is providing professional expertise in the area of counseling and inmate assessment.

In October, 1970, a Chief Social Worker, who holds a Master's Degree and has had several years of professional social work experience, was assigned to the jail. He is in the process of developing a comprehensive social service program in addition to providing professional social work services to inmates. Counseling and assessment services, referrals to appropriate community agencies where indicated, and involvement in the institutional program related to temporary absences, are included in his duties. In the first four months of 1971, the Chief Social Worker conducted 600 interviews; 533 of these were with inmates and the remainder included interviews with family groups, lawyers, teachers, or other persons concerned with the welfare of individual inmates.

Two graduate social work students were hired for the summer months of 1971 to provide additional services. A full-time library technician and a pharmacist have been employed at the Toronto Jail since the fall of 1970. During the latter part of 1971, a psychiatrist and a psychologist also joined the full-time staff.

An adult education program, described below, has been established at this jail.

COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

The increased focus on community involvement continued throughout the year in an attempt to bring the community closer to the jail. Many citizens, as individuals or as members of a group, voluntarily contributed their time and specialized knowledge to assist jail inmates.

Citizen volunteers give talks on such topics as job interviews and money management, and assist inmates to develop hobbies such as short-story writing, painting or chess.

Teachers assist those taking correspondence courses and help students to continue courses which were initiated in the jail upon their release to the community.

At the Toronto Jail volunteers conduct a continuing education program. Most of these volunteers are teachers from the George Brown College of Applied Arts and Technology, and in connection with this program hold classes at the jail two nights a week. They assist inmates with correspondence courses offered through the Department of Education, show films and lead discussion groups. A similar program of volunteer participation is being established at the new Quinte Regional Detention Centre.

TEMPORARY ABSENCE PROGRAM

Most jails are located in the heart of a municipality and are therefore in close proximity to secondary schools, community colleges and universities, as well as to places of employment. For these reasons jails are being used more and more frequently to house persons granted temporary absences in order to further their education or to work at gainful employment. The gradually increasing involvement of jails in the Temporary Absence Program has provided further opportunity for positive interaction between staff and inmates. Those attending school frequently require help with their studies, and many participants, whether working or attending school, require counseling. Jail staff, with the help of citizen volunteers, have contributed greatly to the success of this program.

Under the temporary absence regulations the Superintendent may release an inmate for a period of up to five days for humanitarian or other rehabilitative reasons. Considerable use has been made of this provision in order to restore or maintain good family relationships, to find work, or, in various other ways, to prepare the inmate for his return to the community on completion of sentence. The fact that the program has proved so successful is due in no small measure to the cooperative effort of staff and inmates to adhere to the regulations and to accept the responsibilities inherent in the program.

BAILIFF SECTION

This section, under the direction of the Chief Provincial Bailiff, is responsible for arranging all transfers of inmates under provincial jurisdiction. While the major proportion of transfers are from jails to correctional centres following imposition of a sentence, there are also transfers between correctional centres due to reclassification, and from correctional centres to jails to facilitate participation in the Temporary Absence Program. Of approximately 12,000 transfers per year, about 7,000 are carried out under the escort of bailiffs using vehicles which are designed for this purpose.

General

In addition to the Quinte Regional Detention Centre, there are 42 jails in the province, the majority located at county seats in the southern portion of the province. For administration purposes the jails have been divided into four regional groupings with an Assistant Administrator responsible for each group. This requires each administrator to make frequent visits to the jails in order to meet with staff and to assist with all aspects of jail programs.

During the year an operational audit team from the Department of Civil Service visited all jails, at the request of the Jails Branch, and studied most facets of the operation. This was a thorough study which produced many beneficial recommendations.

During the summer months of 1971, 40 students, mainly from universities, were hired to work in jails. This proved to be a very worthwhile experience. It allowed students, representing many different professional fields, to familiarize themselves with the day-to-day operations of jails, and gave correctional staff, who must deal with many young people, an opportunity to gain considerable insight into the beliefs and values of modern youth. In addition to providing financial help to students, the summer project enabled staff members with school-age children to take their holidays during the summer months.

The Professional Services Division has continued with studies, including demographic surveys, which will help to ensure continued progress in the future.

This Branch is grateful to the various agencies, both governmental and nongovernmental, and to the many individuals who have been helpful and generous in providing valuable time and services. We look forward to their continued interest and cooperation.

INSPECTIONS BRANCH

The primary function of this Branch is to carry out inspection of all the correctional facilities and training schools administered by the Department. Inspection covers all areas of an institution's operation such as administration, security, welfare of residents and staff, and physical aspects of buildings. All inmate complaints are examined and investigated, with written reports submitted to the Deputy Minister through the Executive Director, Institutions Division. Inspections are required by provincial legislation to ensure the safety and well-being of all residents and staff.

Security of the Main Office of the Department is also the responsibility of the Branch in cooperation with the Department of Public Works and in liaison with the contracting security firm involved.

The constant involvement of the Inspection Branch in the day-to-day operation of institutions enables the Branch to contribute to the maintenance of the Department's high standards. This is obtained through knowledge, observation, and recommendation for change or improvement in the daily operation of facilities.

The Inspections Branch, under Mr. Harry Hughes, Chief Inspector, has an aggregate of many years of experience in the field of corrections.

COMMUNITY PROGRAMS BRANCH

TEMPORARY ABSENCE PROGRAM

The Temporary Absence Program, which was established on August 26, 1969, permits selected adult offenders to leave the institution daily for purposes of education or employment, or for a leave of absence of up to 15 days for humanitarian or other reasons clearly related to the rehabilitation of the offender. Superintendents may release an inmate for a period of up to five days; absences longer than this must be authorized by the Deputy Minister.

The location of jails within small local communities provides considerable flexibility to the program since those granted temporary absence may be transferred to the jail or institution closest to their work or school.

The enthusiastic response of Superintendents and their staff has contributed in no small part to the over-all success of the program. Equally, within the community, the response from employers, school administrators, teachers, and other interested persons, has been greatly appreciated.

In order to provide more information on the Temporary Absence Program, two brochures were made available to the general public during the past year. One brochure, designed especially for potential employers, was given wide distribution, and has resulted in a number of enquiries both from small local businesses and from major corporations.

With a few exceptions, those persons granted the opportunity to participate in the program have proved that the faith and trust in them were not misplaced. Out of a total of 4,026 temporary absences granted during the first two years, only 49 were revoked and only one incident occurred in which the participant was convicted of further offences committed in the community during the period of temporary absence.

The economic factors related to the Temporary Absence Program are also of interest. It is estimated that more than $300,000 is earned by participants in a year, and of this more than $60,000 is returned to departmental revenue to cover costs of transportation and accommodation.

In addition to temporary absences designed to meet the specific needs of individual persons, institutions have been encouraged during the past year to arrange for groups, under escort, to visit vocational schools, laboratories, industrial shops, religious services, and various recreational and leadership training activities in the community.

COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

Interaction between the community and corrections has enormous potential in the rehabilitation process, and therefore the Department has continued to encourage the involvement of interested citizens in the programs at institutions.

All training schools continued to expand the extensive community involvement that has been developed and maintained over the years. Training school students use community facilities and take part in local sports activities, parades, county fairs, and other events, such as community drives, pollution clean-up campaigns, recreation programs, and Miles for Millions walks.

Residents of neighbouring communities come into the schools regularly for social events and to present plays and concerts. Numerous volunteers lead discussion groups, help the wards to develop hobbies, or provide assistance in special interests. The Department is encouraging increased involvement of post-secondary school students and other mature young people in working with wards. For several years the programs at Grandview School, Galt, and Hillcrest School, Guelph, have benefitted from the twice-weekly visits of University of Guelph students who, as members of the volunteer organization HELP, lead drama, music, gymnastic and discussion groups as well as organizing other activities. During the summer of 1971 students from Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, Queen's University, and young people working through the Ottawa YM-YWCA, organized and operated camping programs for wards from various training schools. These programs provided opportunities for wards to form meaningful relationships with concerned and stable young people. Based on the results of this first venture, the Department plans to extend this type of volunteer involvement.

Adult correctional institutions have welcomed assistance from community volunteers. For a number of years members of many organizations have arranged meetings and provided counseling at our institutions. Special efforts have been made to expand opportunities for the participation of volunteers at all jails and correctional centres. Contacts have been established with social planning councils, religious organizations, various service clubs, and with capable individuals who are willing to share their time and expertise in direct service to inmates. Volunteers lead discussion groups, provide assistance with correspondence courses, and give talks on various subjects. Excellent liaison has been established with the Addiction Research Foundation, whose local representatives provide guidance and assistance in dealing with problems relating to chemical abuse.

In Ottawa a nine-member citizens' committee has been established to assist the Superintendent and staff of the Regional Detention Centre, which will open early in 1972, in developing programs and activities which will assist in the welfare and rehabilitation of those in custody. The first committee of its kind to be established in the Ontario correctional system, its membership is composed of volunteers representing a cross-section of the Ottawa community.

The Department is most appreciative of the interest, involvement and assistance which so many individuals, organizations, agencies, and other government departments provided throughout the year. We look forward to increasing opportunities for meaningful involvement of the offender in the community, and to continuing the active participation of community volunteers in the programming within correctional institutions.

PAROLE SERVICES

Parole enables convicted persons to complete their sentence in the community under supervision. They must abide by certain reasonable parole conditions, but they can at the same time be self-supporting instead of being supported. They can reside with their families instead of living away from them, and they can call upon experienced, resourceful after-care officers should the necessity arise.

Release on parole is timed so that the recipient will have gained the maximum amount of help which institutional programs individually or in combination can provide. If a person is discharged too early, he will not receive the maximum benefit; conversely it would be wasteful, expensive and frustrating for him to remain in an institution longer than necessary. By assessing the applicant's insight, motivation, needs, and progress, Parole Boards endeavour to arrange for a person's release at the best possible time. Refusal to grant parole may cause some individuals to take more serious stock of themselves and to make a greater effort to change their way of life.

In many cases it is found preferable to be able to offer an individual a second chance to obtain parole later in his sentence, when he has demonstrated through his attitude, work and conduct that he is trying harder and is taking his future more seriously. When a person earns parole he has the satisfaction of knowing that responsible, interested people recognize that a change has taken place in him which should enable him to lead a law-abiding life. Such recognition can do a great deal to encourage him to attain this goal.

LIBRARY SERVICES

The provision of library services is an important part of the Department's rehabilitation program and use of the library facilities is extensive. Not only do libraries provide a valuable addition to the recreational program but they also aid those who wish to better themselves academically. Books and other publications available for inmates, students and wards cover a wide range of interests from light fiction to educational and vocational material.

Books provided in jails are mainly of a recreational nature and are well read; book changes are arranged on a regular basis. Additions were made to existing collections during the year and libraries were established at two newly opened institutions, the Quinte Regional Detention Centre, Napanee, and the Cecil Facer School, Sudbury.

An extensive reference library for staff use, featuring books and periodicals on criminology and penology, is located at the main office in Toronto.

INFORMATION SERVICES

The major objective of this branch is to provide up-to-date information on the numerous and varied departmental programs to the public, news media, staff, and to individuals and agencies with a specific interest or involvement in the corrections field. To achieve this objective the branch relied on four main outlets: news releases, pamphlets and booklets, direct public contact, and displays and exhibits.

The issuance of press releases received a high priority as one of the most effective means of disseminating information concerning developments of interest. A number of pamphlets and booklets on a wide range of departmental activities were prepared during the year for general distribution.

CHEMICAL ABUSE PROGRAM

In any progressive correctional field today the involvement of all persons within the institution, including residents, is emphasized in the attempt to change individual attitudes. It is within this framework that Professional Services personnel provide direct and indirect support to the Department's treatment programs and provide backup services to staff in their interaction with residents. Professional personnel are also involved, at most institutions, in in-service staff training. During recent years there has been an obvious increase in the number of adults and young persons under the Department's care who have been involved in chemical abuses. In an effort to combat this problem and to provide counseling in the area of drug abuse, additional complement positions were created for both professional and supportive staff to facilitate the expansion of existing programs at both adult institutions and training schools.

In cooperation with the Addiction Research Foundation, counseling programs at some institutions have now been expanded, and, at others, professional personnel have been hired to provide the basis for new programs. Staff at the Alex G. Brown Memorial Clinic are also providing consultative services for chemical abuse programs outside their own jurisdiction. Throughout the year conferences and seminars were held to familiarize staff with the best methods of dealing with problems related to chemical abuse. Superintendents as well as senior treatment personnel of training schools attended.

As well as operating counseling/educational programs the Department is making wider use of community referrals for both adults and juveniles. It is often the case that persons with problems related to chemical abuse do not come to the attention of agencies within the community which are in a position to help them. By expanding liaison with such agencies the Department hopes to increase referrals to appropriate local organizations.

With some adults, the problems of drug abuse have been generally evident over a longer period and a specific program is required for them. During the latter part of their sentence such persons are screened for transfer to the Alex G. Brown Memorial Clinic, which operates an intensive counseling program involving a number of professional personnel from varied disciplines. Programs at the other adult institutions, dealing with less serious drug abuse problems, are based on the assumption that drug abuse is only one symptom of maladjustment.

Within the training school setting, drug abuse counseling is a part of the total program. Because it has not been part of a long-established pattern in most students' lives, drug abuse is treated as being one symptom of disturbed behaviour. Interwoven into the educational curriculum at every school, information on drugs, drug abuse, and the resultant societal problems makes students aware of the dangers inherent in drug use and allows the subject to be openly discussed between staff and students. In training schools the additional professional personnel concentrated mainly on staff training, which has helped to increase the awareness of staff to the difficulties faced by youngsters in today's drug-oriented society. Addiction Research Foundation personnel visit training schools to guide staff and to hold group meetings with students.

AFTERCARE SERVICES

The major responsibilities of the Aftercare Services are the supervision of adults upon their return to the community either at the termination of sentence or on parole, and the supervision of juveniles returning to the community from training schools. A total of 172 aftercare officers are stationed throughout the province at 33 offices located at institutions, training schools, and in a number of communities. Three offices which were opened in the latter part of 1971 are situated in Kingston, Newmarket and North Bay.

ADULT AFTERCARE

Adult offenders returning to the community may encounter a number of problems, such as obtaining suitable employment, tools necessary for a particular trade, clothing, accommodation, and so on. It is in these areas that aftercare officers provide material support and at the same time offer guidance and counseling wherever necessary.

Aftercare officers at the Alex G. Brown Memorial Clinic participate in a voluntary one-year follow-up program for patients released from the Clinic; for those patients requesting additional assistance the follow-up period may be extended for as long as is necessary or advisable.

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Aftercare officers are also responsible for community investigations, including home and employer contacts, which provide information for the Ontario Parole Board, and for the assessing of applications for temporary absences.

JUVENILE AFTERCARE

It is extremely important that during a child's stay in a training school every consideration is given to his continuing contact with the community: generally he will be returning to a community school and to classmates who have not been exposed to an institutional setting. Through an intensive program of community interaction as well as through visits with the particular aftercare officer working with the child and his family, it can be said that no child is completely removed from the community.

The aftercare officer, in working to assess whether the child should return to his own home or be placed in a suitable foster home, maintains a close liaison with school personnel. He is therefore a vital link between the child and the community.

Once the child returns to the community, the aftercare officer meets with him regularly and provides counseling where necessary, for both the child and his family or foster family.

COMMUNITY RESOURCES

The Department, particularly through the Aftercare Services, relies heavily on community resources such as mental health clinics, units operated by the Addiction Research Foundation, and halfway houses. The use of community agencies such as Elizabeth Fry, John Howard, and the Salvation Army is an integral part of the Aftercare Services' operations and it is expected that this practice will be still further developed as corrections continues to move closer to the community.

STAFF DEVELOPMENT

All aftercare officers, for varying periods of the year, were involved in some form of continuing education, either through university extension courses, correspondence courses, or through special seminars and conferences. Staff development activities were expanded to include a concentrated orientation program for new staff. Area seminars, three in-service training courses and an annual staff conference were held during 1971.

CHAPLAINCY SERVICES

The chaplaincy staff is larger than it has ever been, the facilities for its use greater than ever, and the need for its ministry increasingly evident. The rapid expansion of the Temporary Absence Program, the increasing use of the resources of society in the service of the sentenced offender, and the growing emphasis upon family counseling, present the staff chaplains with broader opportunities to work with the individual and his family in developing a program of rehabilitation.

The clinical pastoral training program in corrections, sponsored by the Department, is now used extensively by the local Theological Colleges. In addition, senior theological students and assistant chaplains are employed through the summer months, and there has been an increase in the involvement of the "Churches in Society" in the correctional ministry. All of these factors augur well for the future ministry of the Church in provincial correctional institutions.

EDUCATION

All students in training schools are enrolled in a full-time educational program, and attendance on a voluntary basis at day or evening classes in adult institutions is extensive. One hundred and seventy-three teachers and forty-two trade instructors, along with some eighty part-time and volunteer staff provide sound correctional education programming for the students. Many adult students also take correspondence courses to upgrade their academic standing, and others are attending high schools, community colleges, and universities, under the Department's Temporary Absence Program.

This Department has an excellent relationship with the Department of Education, which gives our schools full service and reports regularly on each of our programs. Our commitment to curricula related to the needs of the individual and to creative and imaginative teaching is generally recognized. Many of the Department's teachers have, or are qualifying for, certification in special education and guidance, providing an experienced and capable staff to direct our special educational programs.

A departmental course running for ten Saturdays has been established in order to train teachers from each of our schools to work with learning-disabled children; a special class for these children has been established at Pine Ridge School.

The use of capable volunteers has enhanced our programming considerably this year, particularly at the Toronto Jail and the Quinte Regional Detention Centre, where evening programs in a number of areas are provided. In adult institutions short courses of a social reeducation nature, such as consumer education, job search techniques, and human relations, have been introduced. The new Cecil Facer School in Sudbury where French- or English-speaking and Indian students are taught relevant courses by bilingual and Indian teachers is an example of the Department's response to the need for varied and specialized approaches in correctional education.

FOOD SERVICES

The provision of well-balanced and nutritious meals to all residents of adult institutions and training schools is the main purpose of this branch. The menus used by all institutions meet Canada's dietary standards.

In order to cut costs, quantities of foodstuffs grown or produced at one institution may be shared by other institutions. For instance, bread is baked daily at Millbrook, Burwash and Guelph Correctional Centres and shipped out to a large number of other institutions.

Residents in both adult and juvenile institutions are trained in quantity cooking and serving. All adult institutions give on-the-job training in the preparation, cooking and serving of food, which is useful to those who wish to secure jobs in the food service industry.

To give variety in the daily meals of all residents, a six-week rotating menu is used.

MEDICAL SERVICES

The prime responsibility of this branch is the medical welfare of residents held in the care of the Department. Private physicians in the community, under contract to the Department, provide most of the medical services; however, at larger institutions medical officers are employed on a full-time basis. The services provided are similar to those available in the community and residents needing special attention are referred to local specialists and consultants and, when necessary, placed in local hospitals for treatment.

Registered nurses are on staff at all adult institutions and training schools.

Psychiatric services are available at all institutions, and play an important role in the clinical program and in the programs at assessment centres. Inmates in all adult male institutions may be referred for assessment and/or treatment to the Neuropsychiatric Clinic at the Guelph Correctional Centre. The forensic psychiatric service at Toronto Jail, under the direction of a full-time psychiatrist, has been enlarged by the inclusion of additional personnel from allied professions.

Full-time departmental dentists or dentists from the community provide dental care for residents.

PSYCHOLOGICAL SERVICES

Again this year there has been an expansion in the numbers of psychological staff. The additional personnel were engaged primarily in providing professional services in the department's various schools, clinics, and institutions. Toward the end of the year this total staff consisted of twenty-eight psychologists (fifteen full-time, thirteen part-time) and twenty-six psychometrists, of which two only were part-time employees. This increase was partially attributable to greater interest in the corrections field by qualified university graduates and to governmental decisions enabling this department to play a more extended role in meeting the problems of drug dependence amongst institutional admissions.

Following government planning to meet the needs of young people this year, twenty-five psychology students from about a dozen university psychology departments were able to augment institutional services during the summer months. In most cases it was possible to provide professional supervision under which existing programs were intensified, or new projects were carried out.

Brother Roger Philip Overend, F.S.C., Ph.D., L.I.D., Honorary President, Canadian Psychological Association 1971/2

It is a pleasure to pay tribute here to Brother Philip on the occasion of his election this year to the office of Honorary President of the Canadian Psychological Association.

Brother Philip, who is still active in providing psychological services at St. John's School, Uxbridge, was born in Toronto in 1892 and entered the Order of the Christian Brothers as a young man.

From meteorological physics at the University of Toronto, Brother Philip proceeded to Catholic University in Washington to study psychology under former students of Wilhelm Wundt, "the father of experimental psychology," at Leipzig. He later taught philosophy and psychology at the University of Alberta, at LaSalle College in Philadelphia, and then, from 1939 to 1945, was at Fordham University, New York, where he was for a time the departmental head. Later he taught in the psychology department at Queen's University, the University of Western Ontario, Laval University, and, ultimately, the University of Windsor where, from 1956 to 1962, he was Head of the Department of Psychology and from which position he "retired" to St. John's Training School, having been nominated Professor Emeritus.

Brother Philip was president, in 1945, of the American Catholic Psychological Association; in 1960, president of the Ontario Psychological Association; and he is a Fellow of the American and Eastern Psychological Associations. In 1964, the honorary degree of Doctor of Law was conferred on him by the University of Windsor.

He has published widely in the North American scientific journals. Brother Philip remains in active communication with his many former students and associates in psychology in which he has been a very remarkable Canadian pioneer.

RECREATION SERVICES

The past year has been marked by the development of recreation programs involving the local community and inmates and students from adult institutions and training schools. For example, a softball team from Rideau Correctional Centre participated in a county league and played their games at the home diamond of their opponents. Groups from the Guelph Correctional Centre participated in canoe and camping trips in conservation areas and provincial parks. Student leaders from the Adult Training Centre at Brampton served as umpires in the minor ball league in that town. Students at a number of training schools competed individually or as teams in track and field associations at elementary and secondary schools in the community.

In late 1971 Robert Brayshaw was appointed Director of Recreation Services for the Department and is responsible for the planning and development of recreational programs and policy in training schools and adult correctional institutions. Mr. Brayshaw has an extensive background in recreation and formerly held the position of Supervisor of Staff Training at the Department's Staff Training School, Guelph.

RESEARCH

The Research Branch adopts a pragmatic approach to research, one aimed at providing information for decision-making in the development of both administrative policy and treatment programs.

RESEARCH POLICY

Research studies conducted in the Department may originate from one of several sources. Studies may be initiated, designed, and conducted by Research Branch personnel, with the cooperation and assistance of the operational branches or institutions concerned. Emphasis is placed on involving appropriate staff from main office and from institutions (often in the form of an ad hoc committee) in all phases of these projects, from preliminary design to completion of a report.

Departmental personnel at all levels are encouraged to submit operational research topics for consideration by the Director of Research and his staff. Many valuable ideas have come from this source, since operational problems often derive directly from situations faced by correctional personnel in the day-to-day performance of their duties. Some research projects are designed and conducted by professional staff working in institutional settings; Research Branch personnel are available, when requested, to provide consultation, advice, and, in some cases, assistance with these projects.

It is departmental policy to cooperate with personnel from outside agencies who wish to conduct research projects within the system. In many cases these are members of the university community, either graduate students or faculty members. However, cooperation is also extended to governmental and other agencies, such as the Addiction Research Foundation, the Elizabeth Fry Society, and the Ontario Department of Health, in providing facilities for conducting relevant research. The Director of Research and his staff act as technical advisors and coordinators in all research projects carried out by other agencies under the direct auspices of the Department. Such studies must first be judged methodologically sound, and must have some practical significance to the Department or to the field of corrections in general.

During the fiscal year the Department provided research grants in the amount of $30,000 each to the Centres of Criminology at the University of Ottawa and the University of Toronto. In addition, researchers within university departments conducted research on a contractual basis.

SOCIAL SERVICES

The Social Services program within the Department of Correctional Services is a multidisciplined one and utilizes both social workers and applied criminologists. The establishment of a number of new positions during the year resulted in either the implementation or further development of this program in virtually all of the training schools, most of the correctional centres and adult training centres, as well as at the Toronto Jail and the Quinte Regional Detention Centre.

Social Services personnel perform a variety of functions within the Department's facilities. These include the provision of counseling services, serving on institutional and community committees, involvement in staff development, and participation in the intake, classification and ongoing review process.

Several developments of interest occurred during the past year. Increasing emphasis was placed upon the involvement of families in the rehabilitation process. Consequently, family therapy programs by social services personnel were initiated or intensified in a number of facilities. In order to provide such service, social services staff is now available during weekends since this may be the only time that parents and families are able to visit institutions.

There has been a trend toward increasing involvement and participation by social services staff in the day-to-day activities of institutions. Increasingly, such personnel are moving away from an "office-oriented" approach and are assuming a more active role in institutional programs.

The facilities of the Department are being increasingly utilized by professional schools for student training purposes. At present field work training and experience are provided in the Department for students of the following universities: School of Social Work, University of Toronto; School of Social Work, McMaster University; School of Social Work, Carleton University; School of Social Work, University of Windsor; School of Social Work, Waterloo-Lutheran University; and the Centre of Criminology, University of Ottawa.

The objective of this division in its role of supporting rehabilitative programs for adults and juveniles is to maximize economy of operations and to promote efficiency in accordance with departmental and governmental policies. To meet this objective the services are constantly being reviewed and revised where necessary. The implementation of centralized governmental purchasing and the financial information system are two areas which have necessitated changes in the Department's internal control procedures.

All branches in the division provide support to the Department by controlling and monitoring financial matters as well as by providing support in administrative services.

BUILDINGS

The planning and designing of new correctional facilities continues to have high priority; accommodations for residents are designed in consonance with new treatment and training concepts and programs.

During the initial development stages of any plan for a correctional facility, the Executive Director of the Division, together with appropriate members of his staff, meet with the particular town council concerned as well as with members of related community organizations in order to discuss the specific project. Every effort is made to maintain liaison with community planners during the entire project.

The architect's drawing of Oakville Reception and Assessment Centre is an illustration of a correctional structure designed to facilitate the assessment of juveniles prior to their transfer to the school providing the program best suited to their individual needs. The Centre will accommodate 90 boys and 30 girls. The planning was influenced by a number of factors, including the need for self-contained living units for girls and boys, flexible and efficient areas designed for effective assessment and treatment, while at the same time providing for continuous supervision of all children. The design provides for such central facilities as a gymnasium, hospital, diagnostic area, and multi-purpose classrooms. The buildings are designed to blend architecturally with existing buildings in the community.

A number of other correctional facilities are under construction or are in the planning or design stages, including regional detention centres at Ottawa, Thorold, and London, and the Maplehurst Complex at Milton. This complex, when completed, will comprise an adult training centre, a correctional centre, and a regional detention centre.

The establishment of Project D.A.R.E.-Portage Lake, and the plans for Project D.A.R.E.-Wendigo Lake involved design changes to existing facilities, which were originally used to accommodate adult males in a forestry camp setting. The changes included construction of new buildings which were purposely designed to blend with the woodland setting.

INDUSTRIES

The training provided in adult institutions has been upgraded and changed where necessary to provide skills that meet current employment opportunities. The value of present trade shops is being studied and those considered to be outmoded are being replaced with shops which concentrate on quickly acquired skills that are of particular value to those serving short sentences.

The Department, through visits to other correctional jurisdictions and through studies of current industrial needs, is continually exploring programs of training which may be adapted to suit the needs of offenders in its institutions.

The meat-cutting and processing operations at Guelph Correctional Centre are being expanded. This program gives basic training in the meat processing industry and at the same time provides meat products to a growing number of government institutions.

The canning operations at Burtch and Guelph Correctional Centres were modernized; fruits and vegetables, jams, marmalades, pickles, and tomato juice are canned for use by our own and other government departments.

During the past year new equipment was installed at the Marker Plant at Millbrook Correctional Centre which will facilitate the packaging of license plates in polyethylene film. This will allow inspectors in the marker plant as well as license issuers and the public to check visually to ensure that each package contains a matched pair of license plates. The film is more economical than the previous method of operation, and its use has increased the efficiency of the plant.

Training Schools Advisory Board

The five members of this board act in an advisory capacity to the Minister regarding the current state of the training schools and the welfare of all wards admitted to the schools. An evaluation is made by the board of the plans for returning each ward to the community, either to his own home, a foster home, or a boarding home. This includes examination of the ward's history prior to his training school stay, his social and educational adjustment in the school, and the home to which he will graduate.

The board then makes its recommendation to the Minister.

INTRODUCTION

The major objective of a training school is to assist those assigned to its care to become better equipped to participate fully in the life of the community without resorting once again to unacceptable behaviour. The Training Schools Act, 1965, Section 2, states this specifically as a responsibility of the schools. "The purpose of a training school is to provide the children therein with training and treatment and with moral, physical, academic and vocational education."

On any given day the schools have a total of over 4,000 boys and girls under their care. Of this total, approximately 1,300 are actually living in a training school; the remainder are on placement in the community, in their own homes, foster homes, or group homes. All of these young people have been admitted to the Department's care while under the age of sixteen by order of a Provincial Family Court. They have experienced difficulties of one kind or another in the community, and in most cases a variety of community resources have been utilized without success prior to their admission to training school.

Receiving these troubled young people into our care places great demands on staff and poses a tremendous challenge to the Department. In order to meet the complex needs of those who become wards, fourteen training schools have been established across the province, each of which is, to some degree, a specialized facility.

The programs in the schools are in line with modern philosophy and methods in the care and assistance provided to troubled young people. Through research, programs are constantly evaluated and innovative concepts and approaches are utilized in devising new programs.

CECIL FACER SCHOOL, SUDBURY

Cecil Facer School accommodates 120 boys in six cottages, each of which has fifteen individual rooms and a small dormitory for five boys, a recreation room, a common room, and facilities for family visiting. The design of the individual cottages permits staff to give close individual attention to each boy without in any way restricting the activities of the other boys in the group. The cottage system also makes it possible to operate different types of programs in each cottage to meet the needs of groups of boys with similar problems.

The educational program is a highly individualized one with the emphasis on rehabilitation rather than on strictly academic or vocational content. The facilities are divided into two main sections – academic, including a language laboratory, and the vocational section with its well-equipped shops. The areas of study are broken down into Communications, Social Sciences, Pure and Applied Sciences, and Arts. Social Sciences, for example, encompasses topics such as consumer education, family living education, youth and the law, drug addiction, Indian studies, and outdoor education. The bilingual nature of the school ensures that a student receives instruction in his native tongue.

The recreational program includes not only organized sports within the school but will also involve competition on an individual and team basis with student groups in the community.

Members of the medical and clinical staff include a medical officer, psychiatrist, dentist, nurses, psychologists and social workers, who provide services either on a full-time or a part-time basis.

PROJECT D.A.R.E. – PORTAGE LAKE

This program, Development through Adventure, Responsibility and Education, is aimed at helping young people to become aware of their potential and to develop a desire for achievement and a sense of purpose. It is aimed at assisting the student for whom repeated stays in a training school and frequent placements in the community have failed to develop sufficiently the inner resources and controls that would allow him to utilize his potential for independent and responsible living.

The first of two such programs was established this year at Portage Lake, near Grundy Provincial Park, about fifty miles south of Sudbury. The camp provides accommodation for thirty-six boys in two dormitories. Other facilities include a classroom, chapel, kitchen, and dining-room.

The program is divided into three phases, and each student spends approximately four weeks in each phase of the program.

In the first phase the student is introduced into an outdoor education program which provides him with a better understanding of his environment. The classroom is used as a resource centre and workshop for the various projects assigned. In the second phase the student makes use of his skills by putting them to work in a practical way through involvement in special work projects which are directed toward providing services to others. It also provides training in the construction of portage trails and shelters, pruning and wood cutting, lumbering and methods of fire fighting, rescue and survival. In the third and final phase the student becomes involved in the vigorous, physical experiences of various outdoor activities.

NEW TRENDS IN COMMUNITY PARTICIPATION

During the past summer the trend toward greater community participation in training schools reached new dimensions with the involvement of a number of organized student groups in the provision of special summer programs for wards.

One such program was operated by a group of students from Queen's University under the title of "Outlook Camping Incorporated." With the aid of a provincial grant, Outlook Camping Incorporated provided camping programs for two groups of boys from St. John's School, Uxbridge. Each program involved eleven boys and one staff member from the school, and ran for a period of ten days.

Another example is the program which was operated by a group of students from the Ryerson Polytechnical Institute under the title of "Camp Freeland." The goal of this group was to provide the children entrusted to their care with a meaningful group-living experience in the healthy environment of a camp setting. The camp, for sixty girls from St. Euphrasia's School, was located on Lake Temagami and was staffed by eleven student counselors. The sixty girls were divided into three groups of twenty, and each group spent a total of two weeks at the camp.

Yet another example is provided by a group of young people who, working through the YM-YWCA in Ottawa, supervised a canoe trip program for forty-eight boys from St. Joseph's School in Alfred. The boys were divided into groups of eight with one staff member from the school and two student staff members from the YM-YWCA assigned to each group. The canoe trips took place during the month of July and were of seven days' duration.

Students in recreation who were hired under a special summer employment program with funds provided by the Imperial Oil Company were placed in a majority of our training schools. They acted as recreation officers and assisted in the planning and implementation of varied and active recreation programs for our wards. There is no doubt that they made a valuable contribution to the over-all success of the summer programs in the schools where they were located.

GIRLS' SCHOOLS*RECEPTION AND DIAGNOSTIC CENTRE, GALT

With the exception of Roman Catholic girls, all girls who are admitted to training school are received at the Reception and Diagnostic Centre. Skills of a diagnostic team are utilized to discover the special needs of each new student and to recommend to the Classification Committee the school which would best meet those needs. An assessment of each girl includes investigation of physical health, with special reference to conditions which might be contributing to maladjustment; a study of behaviour including previous behaviour in the community as related to home, school and peer groups; an evaluation of emotional characteristics, attitudes, intellectual potential and functioning, and academic achievement; and a study of the girl's self-image.

GRANDVIEW SCHOOL, GALT

Adjacent to the Reception and Diagnostic Centre is Grandview School, which provides a diversified educational program for girls who require vocational and occupational courses. A curriculum at the secondary school level is also available to those students who can benefit from the more controlled setting afforded by one house of the Grandview complex. The ungraded system has proved to be well suited to strengthening and developing the educational needs of the girls. Courses in restaurant services and merchandising have added a practical dimension to the program.

Intermural volleyball and softball leagues challenge the girls to develop teamwork skills in order to enjoy the competition of local schools. Participation in the swimming and water safety program at the local Y.M.C.A. as well as attendance at the Galt Little Theatre provide positive social experiences. Students from the University of Guelph HELP group visit regularly at Grandview to assist the girls with school work and join in activities. The Kinettes as well as several church groups also contribute to the school program.

Some of the girls have gained invaluable experience by working in nursing homes and acting as assistant teachers in the community schools.

KAWARTHA LAKES SCHOOL, LINDSAY

On the basis of academic ability and maturity girls are selected from the Galt Reception Centre for Kawartha Lakes School. It is recognized that education is a round-the-clock process and the efforts of the academic staff are enhanced by the contributions of other staff members and community volunteers, who have taken on such projects as the school choir, drama presentations and work services programs.

In the past year a community-oriented program was introduced on a trial basis. It was designed to allow students an opportunity to participate on a voluntary basis in programs administered by social agencies in the community. Those active in the program were required to maintain the same levels of achievement within the residential and academic sectors of the school as those not actively involved in the program. While in the community, the student was supervised only by the agency for whom she worked. It was felt that in order for her to derive the maximum therapeutic benefit from her work experience, she must be allowed the opportunity to assume the role of "a typical teenage employee."

So positive was the response from the students and the community that the program was expanded to involve more than half of the student population. The girls worked at Sunnyside Home for Children and received training in child care, practical nursing and physical therapy techniques. At Ross Memorial Hospital girls were assigned as student nurses aides in the pediatric section, the central lab, and the emergency treatment unit. Under the auspices of the Victoria County School Board, a girl was placed as a teaching assistant in a specialized school for mongoloid children. In addition, students from Kawartha Lakes School have been involved in service with a nursing home, a youth centre, several local churches, and the Public Health Service.

TRELAWNEY HOUSE, PORT BOLSTER

Situated on the shores of Lake Simcoe, Trelawney House affords a home-like atmosphere to a small group of the younger girls admitted to our school system. The setting lends itself to the development of emotional security in children who exhibit symptoms of social deprivation. The high staff/child ratio provides an opportunity for each girl to receive special attention, and the ever-growing involvement of volunteers complements the efforts of the regular staff. Girls from Trelawney House regularly participate in the activities of the local community and they have been greatly helped by local citizens and groups who have made various facilities and events available to the girls.

ST. EUPHRASIA'S SCHOOL, TORONTO

St. Euphrasia's School is operated by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd for Roman Catholic girls in the province.

The school provides a broad range of academic subjects supplemented by occupational and vocational courses and a variety of extra-curricular activities such as swimming, team sports, arts and crafts, hobby groups, and music. During the summer all girls had the opportunity to study child care and home nursing, charm and personal development, and life saving. Several girls are now qualified life guards.

Community contacts have continued to multiply, and several high school and university groups, church groups, and individual citizens have generously contributed many hours of fun and learning and friendship. It was found that many community college and university students who worked at the school during the summer months returned to volunteer their time and continue the relationships that had been established previously.

As of November, 1971, this school has come under the full direction of the Department and is now interdenominational. It has been renamed Elmcrest.

The Department is indebted to the Sisters of the Good Shepherd for the valuable contribution they have made over the years to the field of corrections.

BOYS' SCHOOLS

PINE RIDGE SCHOOL, BOWMANVILLE

Pending the opening of the Reception and Assessment Centre under construction in Oakville, Pine Ridge School continues to serve as the reception unit for all non-Catholic boys in the province. Since the opening of Cecil Facer School, Sudbury, Pine Ridge receives only those boys south of the District of Parry Sound and Nipissing. For those boys remaining at Pine Ridge, the school offers a program emphasizing vocational and occupational skills.

During the summer, the clinical and teaching staff developed an experimental program for boys requiring specialized reading. The encouraging results stimulated the continuation of these efforts as a regular part of the school program.

New recreational activities include snow-shoeing, English rugger, and Orienteering. Community involvement was expanded: service clubs, police groups, municipal recreation, public and high schools, church groups, and young peoples groups contributed to the school's attempt to give each boy a variety of positive experiences.

A small group called Alateen, allied to Alcoholics Anonymous, which works with the families of alcoholics, has proved popular among the boys and has gained wide support, even among boys whose families are not troubled by the problem of alcohol.

All students at Pine Ridge School participate in a five- to six-week Outdoor Education Course at COLDSPRINGS CAMP. Classroom concentration is on Natural Sciences, and practical forestry work is an important part of the experience. Raising pheasants for the Conservation Authority is a continuing project as is maintenance of picnic areas in the Ganaraska Forest. Staff, assisted by students, erected a Quonset hut which will provide an indoor recreation area, particularly for the winter months.

WHITE OAKS VILLAGE, HAGERSVILLE

The youngest boys to enter the training school system are placed in White Oaks Village. A relatively high staff/child ratio is maintained in order to provide intensive care and treatment for youngsters who demonstrate the need for special assistance at an early age. The role of the family is recognized as vital to the successful treatment of the child and the school continues to facilitate family counseling by providing overnight accommodation on the grounds for parents visiting their child.

White Oaks Village strives to provide an individualized education program at once imaginative and effective to meet the needs of these boys. An integrated treatment concept provides for the involvement of house staff in the classroom as well as the dedicated participation of volunteers to assist in remedial work with individual boys.

Outdoor education and learning through activity was extended by the expansion of the winter camping program as well as the summer day-camp program which included an Olympic Day during which boys competed against their own records. The effectiveness of White Oaks Village relies on trained staff united in a team effort, under the guidance of skilled clinicians. House meetings, community case conferences, individual conferences and therapy programs for individual boys integrate the work of concerned persons in the school and in the community.

SPRUCEDALE SCHOOL, HAGERSVILLE

Adjacent to White Oaks Village is Sprucedale School, for boys between the ages of 14 and 16 who appear suited to the four-year Science, Trades and Technology Course.

Sprucedale continues to emphasize the development of meaningful relationships between staff, students and community, and provides favourable conditions for fostering trust and responsibility. A Drop-In Centre where students can spend an hour or two in the evenings or on weekends is popular. Under the direction of clinical and recreational staff, this unit has stimulated open communication in a relaxed setting. Assisting in this venture are students from community colleges who have field placements at Sprucedale.

In addition to the Drop-In, Sprucedale School opened a new unit for eighteen boys, with individual rooms for each boy. The lodge, named Aquarius by the boys, is characterized by a program designed to foster social and personal growth. Staff assume the role of counselors in contrast to that of supervisors and assist the students in planning their own program.

The activities at the school were augmented by regular participation in community events such as young peoples groups, Army Cadets, public skating at the local arena, bowling, various field trips, and dances. In addition, students from McMaster University, Mohawk College and several high schools initiated sports and social activities and organized exchange programs for soccer, basketball, volleyball, cross-country running and track and field.

BROOKSIDE SCHOOL, COBOURG

Brookside School, for boys over twelve and academically below the secondary school level, provided an active program with increased community involvement.

Senior students from Trinity College formed photography and printing clubs and engaged the boys in gymnastics. Trips to Marine Land, Lion Safari, Martyrs' Shrine, Parliament Buildings, National Arts Centre, and many points of interest supplemented the educational program.

At Brookside every effort is made to foster and instil feelings of self-worth and accomplishment. The boys again competed in the Northumberland Music Festival and claimed first place, and the school's Scout Troop won the Ontario Provincial Police Trophy for the best Troop at the Annual Scout Camporee.

GLENDALE SCHOOL, SIMCOE

Senior boys with the ability to follow the Department of Education's Arts and Science and Business and Commerce programs are provided with the basic curriculum as well as many enrichment courses and a variety of challenging extra-curricular activities.

Local citizens and industries have been most cooperative in providing some students with part-time work experience, and, in return, the school contributed to the community welfare by organizing a mammoth pollution pick-up (an enterprising project for the United Appeal which netted more than $500.00), and by participating in a walkathon for the purpose of purchasing a resuscitator for the local ambulances.

A highlight of involvement in the athletic area within the community was the enthusiastic competition in track and field. Several students earned their way through regional competitions and one student represented the area in the All Ontario Secondary School Track and Field Meet in Toronto.

HILLCREST SCHOOL, GUELPH

Hillcrest offers a specialized program to boys throughout the province who, having been placed in another school subsequent to assessment, demonstrate the need for intensive staff involvement and external controls. As the youth respond to the carefully structured program, he is afforded greater opportunities for exercising internal controls, and participating in community activities.

The University of Guelph HELP group has contributed consistently to the school program. Regular visits to the school to engage boys in sports and hobbies, or to take them to barbecues and picnics at local beaches or to the Mini Golf Course have provided wholesome contacts with the community.

The boys have assisted the Guelph Recreation Committee to prepare for the yearly Guelph Exhibition, and the manager of a ski lodge to prepare the area for winter skiing. These two groups have made their facilities available to the school on several occasions. Such opportunities were the basis of a Work Experience Program which offers a five-week period of employment to a student who is prepared to undertake the responsibilities of such a project.

ST. JOHN'S SCHOOL, UXBRIDGE

St. John's, operated by the Brothers of the Christian Schools, is situated near the town of Uxbridge and accommodates Catholic boys from central and southwestern Ontario. Except for contact in the academic program, St. John's operates two separate programs for boys according to age and development.

The Orientation Committee, consisting of representatives of the clinical, medical and aftercare services as well as the academic and supervisory staff, is charged with determining as quickly as possible after arrival of the new boy, his reasons for being admitted and the personal, community and familial strength on which he can draw. It is the duty of this committee also to assess the mental state and capacities of each boy so that a suitable program can be devised for him as an individual.

Valuable help has been given through the use of a summer program which is supplemented by qualified voluntary assistance from the area. Subjects such as Youth in Society and Growth and Development were offered, and the regular program was expanded to include field trips, educational excursions and visits to the school by innumerable professional 'resource' persons, each of whom helps to enrich the program.

ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL, ALFRED

Located forty-five miles east of Ottawa, St. Joseph's is operated by the Brothers of the Christian Schools for Catholic boys from eastern Ontario. As many students are French-speaking, the school offers an academic program in both French and English. Opportunity and remedial classes are available for those requiring a special educational program. There is a full academic program along with a two-year occupational program for students at the secondary school level as well as instruction for those students in the elementary grades. Recreational and educational activities at the school include indoor and outdoor sports such as swimming, gymnastics, bowling, camping, stamp club, drama club, and music appreciation.

University students were added to the staff during the summer months and they worked as supervisors, counselors and instructors and accompanied the boys on trips and to camp. A Winter Carnival Day was held to which parents were invited and later they dined with their sons. Representatives of various police forces joined the boys in a day of competitive sports, and the event ended with a banquet and the presentation of awards by the sponsoring police forces.

Students of the University of Ottawa's Centre of Criminology worked at the school during the year. Over a six-month period they engaged boys in group sessions and individual counseling, and accompanied and supervised the boys during their various activities.
